We would be grateful if you could pass to your students and colleagues information about the course and/or post the announcement on relevant sites, listservs, blogs, etc. We could also send you posters in hard copy if you could put the course poster up on students' or staff notice boards (also available at http://www.summer.ceu.hu/sites/default/files/course_files/TL-flyer-2012_3.pdf).

Brief course description

The Total Law™ summer course in ADVANCED EUROPEAN LEGAL PRACTICE is an advanced course about the practice of European Union Law. The program combines seminars on selected topics, supporting workshops, and individual/group assignments. Through participation in the course activities and interaction with experienced practitioners and well-known academics who share their extensive knowledge of EU law and its practical operation, participants will improve their understanding of selected EU legal issues and their economic, social and political contexts.

The Total Law team, led by Joseph Weiler (Joseph Straus Professor of Law and Jean Monnet Chair at New York University School of Law) includes: José M. de Areilza (Professor of European Union Law and Dean of IE Law School, Madrid), Kieran St C. Bradley (Head of the Legislation Unit of the European Parliament's Legal Service, Brussels), Damian Chalmers (Professor and Jean Monnet Chair in EU law at the London School of Economics and Political Science), Miguel Poiars Maduro (Professor and Director of the Global Governance Programme at the European University Institute, Florence), Imola Strehö (Associate Professor at Sciences Po, Paris) and Karine Caunes (Jean Monnet Research Fellow within the Center for International and Regional Economic Law & Justice at New York University School of Law and coordinator of the Total Law team).

Participants have two enrollment options: either they opt for the Diploma option, which requires them to pass an examination at the end of the course, and entitles them to a course Diploma and CEU academic credits; or they opt for the Certificate option, which entitles them to a Certificate of Participation, provided that they meet the course requirements.

NEW! This year the course aims to broaden its disciplinary and professional profile by including not only participants from legal academia or practice, but also from other related fields of expertise (i.e. EU affairs, European studies, public policy, administration, civil service, governance, diplomacy, international relations, political science, sociology, etc).

In order to be selected for the course, participants should demonstrate a solid academic and/or professional expertise in EU affairs, as well as a strong interest in acquiring a better understanding of the EU legal framework and its implications for public policies. The course is addressed primarily at professionals and academics who are seeking further credentials in European Union law. It also admits advanced students (students in the final year of their undergraduate studies or post-graduate students), who are seeking to embark on professional or academic careers where an understanding of EU law and policy and their interactions is considered essential. The course is thus particularly relevant to civil servants from EU Member States, candidate and neighboring countries, employees of international organizations (including EU institutions), NGOs, interest groups and lobbyists involved in policy-making in fields affected by EU laws and policies, as well as to those considering such positions.

Please note that the Total Law course is a fee-paying course.
